EXPEDITIONS

January 10-17, 2027 | Aboard the National Geographic Quest

SPECIAL OFFER: 5% GROUP SAVINGS

Dear OSU Alumni and Friends,

Bridging the Americas and dividing two oceans, Costa Rica and Panama are small, neighboring nations brimming with wonders. At this tropical crossroads, waterfalls cascade from misty mountains into winding jungle rivers, where the canopies are alive with a wild symphony of roaring howler monkeys and squawking scarlet macaws. It's easy to see how Costa Rica's pristine beauty inspired the popular greeting, pura vida—or "pure life." Then, amid Panama's lush wilderness, stands an astonishing triumph of human ingenuity: the monumental lock system of the Panama Canal.

Discover these remote rainforests, idyllic islands, and feats of engineering aboard the small and purpose-built National Geographic Quest. This nimble, 50-cabin vessel is perfectly designed to sail along the sinuous channels and hidden coves of wild places, from Panama's idyllic Coiba Island to Costa Rica's jungle-shrouded Osa Peninsula. We also have special permission to transit the Panama Canal over two days, which allows us to take in eye-level views of its intricate workings and dazzling illumination.

Our eight-day itinerary features adventures for every pace and skill level. Wind around the Gulf of Panama's tiny islets by Zodiac, or kayak past the tranquil mangroves of Golfo Dulce in Costa Rica's southernmost reaches. Snorkel among thousands of colorful fish, glide across turquoise waters on a stand-up paddleboard, or simply relax on golden sands. A veteran expedition team is always on hand to help you spot endemic agouti, fiery-billed aracaris, and other fascinating species hidden in the dense forest canopy. Plus, a certified photo instructor is dedicated to helping you capture the photos of a lifetime.

To reserve your space, please return the reservation form, email groups@expeditions.com, or call 833-985-1261.

Sincerely,

Your friends at the OSU Alumni Association
